Rapid City, SD - 75 Family Members Enjoy the 2009 Reunion

Windemuth descendants from across the United States and Canada attended the 2009 North American Family Reunion in Rapid City, South Dakota. This three day event, scheduled every two years, was held July 8-10, 2009.

Our co-hosts for the reunion were Rapid City residents Zetha and Bud Estes along with Herb and Sue Cook. Their two years of planning along with the setting provided by the Black Hills of South Dakota created an event family members will remember for years to come.

The opening reception and dinner kicked off the reunion on Wednesday evening. It was a sellout event when approximately a dozen family members who live within easy driving distance decided to join us at the last minute! This offered plenty of opportunity to meet "new cousins" and catch up with others that had not been seen in years. During the evening, Kelly Wintermute from Wisconsin made a presentation demonstrating the information available on the Windemuth web site (www.windemuth.org). Later, host Zetha Estes provided a history and demonstration of rug hooking. It was a skill she had learned from her grandmother Bell Wintermote.

Thursday morning the family meeting was held. Reports were received from Secretary Shirley Mickey, Treasurer Leonard Wintermote, Genealogy Chair Susan Meier and Cemetery Chair Neal Wintermute. Kelly Wintermute, using a PowerPoint presentation from Susan Wintermuth who lives in Germany, generated excitement for the 2010 Windemuth German Reunion. The dates for the event are August 5-15, 2010. Following the meeting, a group photo was taken. The afternoon and evening provided an opportunity for reunion

Life in Germany - The Lives of our Ancestral Men

By Mike Wintermute

Mike Wintermute

Michael A. Wintermute's international travels over the past 35 years has afforded him the opportunity to visit and explore Pfungstadt and Allendorf, the German towns from which our ancestors emigrated. Mike can be reached at:

mikwinc@sbcglobal.net

Third of a three part series; this article looks at our paternal ancestors and their lives in Germany and colonial America during the 17th and 18th century.

Part 3

Our oldest known ancestor, Johannes Windemuth, lived in Allendorf on the Werra River. Though his exact date of birth is unknown, it is believed to have been about 1624. He died on December 27, 1694.

Born during the Thirty-Years War, 1618-1648, Johannes and his family survived while nearly two-thirds of the population of Germany died. Some were battle field fatalities but most perished as the result of starvation caused when foraging armies pilfered and destroyed crops and farm animals. The land-graviate of Hesse-Kassel, where Allendorf is located, was trampled by roaming armies from Sweden, Spain and elsewhere. With the exception of two stone buildings, the town of Allendorf was completely destroyed by Croatian soldiers in 1637.

Heinz Conti-Windemuth, a German genealogist, wrote that the oldest reference to the Windemuth name was in a feudal tenure letter (probably a lease or promissory note) from the Germerode Monastery for property near Frankershausen. Heinz also mentioned that the oldest known locations where Windemuths lived were in towns on the Meissner, near Allendorf and Weidenhausen.

Men of the early Windemuth families performed a variety of jobs. A few were shepherds, some labored in the local coal, salt and mineral mines, others were teamsters that hauled freight. Heinz indicates that several were farmers and property managers for the feudal families, others were professional soldiers in the Hessen-Kassel army and two were mayors of small towns.

Johannes was reported to have been a wagon maker. Since the Bad-Sooden Allendorf area was home to a very large Teamster Guild, wagon making was probably a very profitable trade. Even so, the family faced the continuing prospect of starvation and disease caused by the war and the extremely cold winters of that time. Two of his daughters died as toddlers.

Under the feudal system, residents of the landgraviate had to pay substantial taxes. During the Thirty-Years War, the population of the area dropped by more than half, but the taxes for the area remained the same. This meant that the taxes every individual had to pay more than doubled. Wagon makers with good incomes would have certainly carried a heavy tax burden. The landgrave took the tax money, provided few services and virtually nothing in the way of defense against the invading armies.

Johannes' wife Beata died in September of 1693 at the age of 58. Johannes married a second wife, Elisabeth Wager, in May of 1694, just a few months before his death in December of that year. Johan Christoph, the youngest child, is the only known survivor of that family.

"...during the Thirty-Years War, 1618-1648, Johannes and his family survived while nearly 2/3 of the population of Germany died."

Johan Christoph married Maria Margarethe Kleppinger in Pfungstadt during January of 1702. We have no record of how or when he came to Pfungstadt which is more than 100 miles from Allendorf, a very long journey at that time. Perhaps he came with help from his extended family, his God parents, or perhaps he ventured there on his own.

Pfungstadt is near Darmstadt where

Windemuth Family Reunion Tour in Germany

August 5-15, 2010

Guten Tag!

Would you like to visit the old country and the home of our ancestors? I live here now and am delighted to host a special 2010 family reunion in Hessen, one of the states of Germany.

The 10 day reunion, a tour by private coach, starts in Pfungstadt, the birthplace of Johan Georg Windemuth. From there we will travel to Worms and then on to Bingen where we have booked a cruise on the Rhine to enjoy the beauty of medieval castles towering above the banks.

Then we will travel through wine country to Bad Sooden-Allendorf where Johann and Beata Windemuth lived. This is a beautiful area and we will spend 4 days there with day-trips into the countryside. A number of Windemuth descendants still live in the area, so we have invited them to join us in Allendorf for a reception and banquet.

Our reunion tour has purposely avoided the big cities so you can enjoy the quaint countryside and small towns. You will see lots of castles, cathedrals and medieval villages much as they were when our ancestors were alive.

I look forward to meeting you here in Germany on August 5-15, 2010. This is a reunion you won't want to miss!

Sincerely,
Susan-Gale Wintermuth
2010 Reunion Host

Tour Highlights

- A ten-day luxury coach tour of central Germany.
- We will be visiting and staying in the smaller towns little changed over the centuries.
- A one-day river tour on the Rhine where medieval castles tower above the shoreline.

A Glimpse of the Past - Hampton Wintermute 1823-1914

Hampton Wintermute lived on his farm at Conway, Iowa for approximately 46 years before moving to Bedford, IA. Family information shows that he bought his residence in Bedford from C.C. Hess in 1902. Hampton and his wife Angeline Travolia lived there for the rest of their lives. She died in 1910 and Hampton in 1914.

In Hampton's will, he left the house and all the furniture to his two daughters, Mary Jane (Minnie) and Mabel, and to his son Algie to occupy as long as they lived and were not married.

It is believed that Algie, known as

Hampton Wintermute (J.G.-P.-VI-III) 1823-1914

"Link", lived with Ella Wintermute on her farm southeast of Conway when she taught country school there and he may have lived in the Bedford house. Minnie and Mabel were both doctors of Osteopathy; Dr. Mabel bought a house in Lenox and had her practice there. Dr. Minnie did occupy the Bedford house and practiced her profession there. The house stands in Bedford today.

Information was provided by Hampton's great granddaughter, Kathleen (Wintermute) Rumiano. The story was written by great granddaughter, Lucille (Ellison) Gaspar.

reportedly there was a large Tailors Guild. Johan Christoph was a tailor and perhaps went to Darmstadt to serve his apprenticeship.

Johan Christoph and his family lived during the era of the "mini-ice-age". Growing seasons were short, limiting food production. The resulting poor diets often lead to starvation, disease and death. Two of their five children died as infants or toddlers within an eleven month period and his wife Maria Margarethe died at the age of 38.

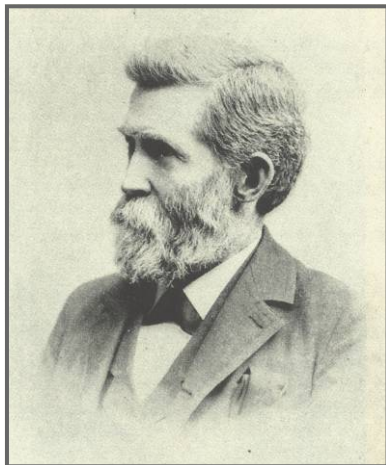

Johan Christoph married his second wife, Anna Elizabeth Wambold, within a year. He was 42 years old and she was 24. His three surviving children at the time of this marriage were Anna Elizabeth (14), Georg Philip aged (12), and Johann Georg (6).

In spite of the continuing long and cold winters the family gradually saw better times and a period of relative peace as the children grew to be adults.

Anna Elizabeth married Johannes Schnauber in 1722. Georg Philip emigrated to America in 1732 followed by Johan Christoph, his wife Anna and Johann Georg in 1736. Anna Elizabeth, and her husband Johannes Schnauber (later changed to Snover), a master miller, emigrated in 1737. Johannes Snover was likely the source of milling expertise that resulted in the construction of several mills in and around Stillwater, New Jersey.

After arriving in America, Johann Georg Windemuth married Margaret Elizabeth Bernhardt. We have little information about the Bernhardt family before they emigrated to the New Jersey area. We do know that Margaret and her father, Johan Peter Bernhardt were born in Kirzenheim, Germany located in Rhenish Bavaria, the Lower Palatinate. This area of Germany suffered greatly during the Thirty-Years War and again in the late 17th century when the armies of King Louis IV, virtually destroyed every town.

Johan Peter Bernhardt and his son-in-law Casper Sheaffer were the first of our relatives to settle in Stillwater, New Jersey. Eventually, Johan Peter's daughters with their husbands (including Johann Georg Windemuth), all joined their father in Stillwater.

By Susan Meier, Genealogy Committee Chair

A number of family members have inquired about the availability of the 1900 edition of the Wintermute Family History by Jacob Perry Wintermute. It has been out of print for several decades, but facsimile reprints can now be ordered from the following internet web site:

www.ancestralbooks.com/SurnamesW

When you arrive at the web site, scroll down to "Wintermute". The price for the 404 page reprint is $43.78.

It should be noted that the complete 1900 edition is included in the current Windemuth Family Heritage 1996 book.

The Windemuth DNA project continues. It is open to all males with any variation of the Windemuth surname. So far, five family members have been tested and show a strong DNA match to Johan Christoph Windemuth, our emigrator. We are particularly interested in testing males in European countries or those with uncertain genealogical connections to the Windemuth line. Contact me for more information:
